Bed Rest Guidelines

Helping you have a healthy baby

If your doctor has put you on either “modified” or “strict” bed rest while you are pregnant, here are important instructions for you to follow.

Why do I need bed rest?

Lying on your side in bed increases the flow of blood to your uterus. This relaxes the uterine muscles, which helps decrease contractions.

Can I still take childbirth classes?

Check with your doctor about attending a class, if you can use the floor or a chaise lounge to lie on your side during class. Limit practicing to relaxation and birth techniques. DO NOT exercise or practice “pushing.” Ask your doctor about educational videos.

Is it safe to have sex while on bed rest?

While you are on bed rest:

- Do NOT do any nipple or breast preparation.
- Do NOT become sexually stimulated.
- Do NOT douche.
- Put NOTHING in your vagina unless prescribed by your doctor.
- Be open to enhancing your relationship in non-sexual ways. Try hugging, cuddling, and back, foot, or scalp massage.

What about my partner’s needs?

A high-risk pregnancy with activity restrictions is stressful for the entire family. The partner may feel overwhelmed at times, especially if there are already children in the household to take care of. To help ease the stress, partners can:

- Talk with friends when things are difficult.
- Find support groups where they can talk with others who have also experienced a high-risk pregnancy.
